

TEACH Grant recipients must also confirm to the Federal Department of Education in writing within 120 days of completing or otherwise ceasing enrollment in a TEACH-eligible program that they are fulfilling (or planning to fulfill) the terms and conditions of the service agreement.

The elementary or secondary school's chief administrative officer must certify documentation of the teaching service. This documentation must show that the TEACH recipient was a full-time, highly-qualified teacher at a school serving low-income students, teaching a high-need subject area for at least four years.

Important Reminders

- Failure to complete the teaching obligation or properly document teaching service will cause the TEACH Grant to be permanently converted to an unsubsidized Federal Direct Stafford Loan with interest. Interest would accrue from the date of the original disbursement.
- Once a grant is converted to a loan, it cannot be converted back to a grant.
- Students must seriously consider the financial impact that converting these grants into loans will have on their future.

Teaching Obligation

To avoid repaying the TEACH Grant as a loan with interest, recipients must be highly-qualified, full-time teachers in a high-need subject area at a school serving low-income students. Teachers must serve for at least four years within eight years of finishing their program. Specific definitions of terms are below.

- Highly Qualified Teacher:
The term highly-qualified teacher is defined in section 9101(23) of the "Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965" and in section

602(10) of the "Individuals with Disabilities Education Act"—online at: www.ifap.ed.gov/dpccletters/GEN0414.html.

- Full-Time Teacher:
Recipients must meet the state's definition of a full-time teacher and spend at least 51 percent of time teaching in a designated "high need" field at a designated school for teaching to count towards meeting the service obligation. These designations can change over time. Elementary school teachers who teach many subjects would not be able to fulfill their service agreement.
- High-Need Subject Areas:
 - Bilingual Education and English Language Acquisition
 - Foreign Language
 - Mathematics
 - Reading Specialist (available at UF)
 - Science (available at UF)
 - Special Education (available at UF)
 - Other teacher shortage areas identified at the time you begin teaching. These subject areas (not geographic areas) are listed in the Department of Education's "Annual Teacher Shortage Area Nationwide Listing" at www.ed.gov/about/offices/list/ope/pol/tsa.doc.
- Schools Serving Low-Income Students:
Schools serving low-income students include any elementary or secondary school listed in the Department of Education's "Annual Directory of Designated Low-Income Schools for Teacher Cancellation Benefits" at <https://www.tcli.ed.gov/CBSWebApp/tcli/TCLIPubSchoolSearch.jsp>.
- Documentation:
For each TEACH-eligible program for which TEACH Grant funds are received, recipients must provide documentation to the Department of Education that the teaching obligation was completed.
